Mayor's Office of Drug Control Policy (MODCP)

The drug issue Huntington area faces is a multifaceted problem. Not only do we face an outside threat of drug trafficking organizations from large Midwest cities selling drugs in our city, but we face a large a large portion of our populations that is addicted to these drugs. Just as the problem is multifaceted the solution must be multifaceted as well.

It has been more than a decade since resources were cut and our area became an easy mark for individuals distributing drugs. Within a few short years Huntington was a regional distribution hub for various illegal drugs. Individuals from Michigan, Ohio, Georgia, and Florida have infected our area in the early and mid-2000s selling various drugs.

This new city wide strategy has been born out of the recognition that drug use is not only a criminal justice problem, but a public health and economic problem. This makes it the next logical step with the River to Jail program. This strategy will have an emphasis on community-led prevention/intervention programs, aligning criminal justice policies and public health systems to divert non-violent drug users into treatment instead of jail, expanding access to substance abuse treatment. The reason for this is because a carefully coordinated mix of strategies, rather than any single service or approach, has the greatest chance of leading to effective drug prevention.

Mission

The mission of the Office of Drug Control Policy is to serve as a leader for improving the health and safety of individuals by promoting strategic approaches and collaboration to reduce drug trafficking and related crime while promoting prevention and treatment options for addicts.

Structure

The Office of Drug Control Policy will be headed by Director of Drug Strategy, who would have the authority of the mayor to make decision related to drug issues.
